

LIFELONG LEARNING

* Ami Ogino (Tokushimabunri University)

1. Introduction

In Japan...

Lack of human resources.

1. Introduction

“Lifelong Learning”

2.Method

2-1 Comparison by type of fusion

	Entrance examination	Program contents	Subject of seminar	Night / Holiday classes
Working people entrance examination	For working people	For general students	Students and members of society	None
Long-term student system	For working people	Mainly for general students	In principle, individual correspondence	Only some
Liberal arts students	For working people	Mainly for general students	Specialized for working adults	None With exception
Open lecture	None	For general members of society	None	Yes
High school cooperation class	None	High school students and University students	None	None
Night class	None	For working people	None	Yes
Senior college	None	Senior and University students	Specialized for seniors	None

2.Method

Shiraishi point out

- 1. Curriculum changes
- 2. Incompatible with childcare and nursing care
- 3. Night Course Issues
- 4. Students gathered at popular university
- 5. Moral decline of freshmen

2.Method

Solution①

Scholarship program for adult students

2.Method

Solution②

“online courses.”

3.Result

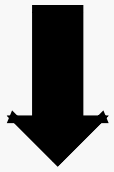

By carrying out these and the suggested solutions

1.the amount of university students increase

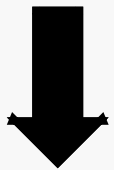

2.the elimination lack of specialized human resources occupations that are specialized

4. Conclusion

Lack of qualifications and knowledge

Working people cannot do professional work

As a result, labor shortage

4. Conclusion

Lifelong Learning

Recurrent education

5. References

* Masahiro Kagawa, Mari Suzuki, Hidekazu Sasaki, 2008, "Understand lifelong learning" Minerva Publishing

* Shiraishi(2016) "Chapter 5: Opening a University Aiming at the Fusion of Student Education and Adult Education" Takamichi Uesugi, Masahiro Kagawa, Yasuo Kawamura," Can a University Become a Knowledge Base for a Community?", Minerva Publishing, p.61-74

* HUFFPOST, "90% of adults want to learn again. But there is no money or time. What is the issue of "Recurrent Education"? (Investigation result)" https://www.huffingtonpost.jp/enjapan/manabinaoshi_a_23433836/
Released on May 21, 2018, Viewed on February 8, 2020